

About PETER BALLANTYNE CREE NATION

The Peter Ballantyne Cree Nation people have occupied lands in Northeast Saskatchewan since time immemorial. The Peter Ballantyne Cree Nation are called Assin'skowitiniwak or Rocky Cree. Assin'skowitiniwak means "people of the rocky area". The Peter Ballantyne Cree Nation consists of 8 communities, including Amisk Lake, Deschaumbault Lake, Kinoosao, Pelican Narrows, Prince Albert, Sandy Bay, Southend, and Sturgeon Landing. The Cree Nation government is composed of an elected Chief and Council which are democratically elected pursuant to the Cree Nation Election Act. The current Chief since 2013 is Peter A. Beatty. There are 14 councillors - two each from Southend, Sandy Bay, and Deschambault Lake, five from Pelican Narrows, and one each from Amisk Lake, Sturgeon Landing, and Prince Albert.

HIGHLIGHTS AND OPPORTUNITIES

- On February 11, 1889, Commissioner Irvine met with the Montreal Lake and Lac La Ronge First Nations at Molanosa at the north end of Montreal Lake at the outflow of the Montreal River, concluding an adhesion to Treaty Six. It had exactly the same terms as Treaty Six had 13 years prior.
- Peter Ballantyne was appointed as the first Chief, serving in that capacity until 1917.
- PBCN Education is the largest First Nation system in Saskatchewan.
- MISSION: To be a responsible and committed leader in business development for the Peter Ballantyne Cree Nation and its Members, the communities that we operate in, our partners and all other stakeholders
